Additional comments

3. There is no such entity as a "nonpartisan" commission if it is appointed by politicians! The best they could reach is "they can't agree on anything".

9. The idea is commendable but we can do this without an amendment. Define "inflation" as it relates to NC and define "population growth" for years between the 10 year census. This amendment would be too confusing.

25. I believe a portion of the money allotted for each student should follow the student to the school of their choice. This could make the concept of school choice even more attractive than scholarships.

34. I hesitate to agree to a "right amount" because even at $8400 there is plenty of inefficiency in the system now. In reality we can do a lot better with less than $8400 if we are allowed to tackle the waste, duplication, archaic rules and inefficiencies that are presently entrenched in the system. Unfortunately no one, so far, has dared to challenge the sacred cow called the Department of Public Instruction. It's time we did that.
