right. lets don't do anymore yet. and we don't want our invite list to become nancy's ... any response we make will need to begin with the notion that we only have 50 seats because of the room -- it's not that it's closed -- we just can't accommodate many folks

Subject: Handling unsolicited RSVPs...

Hi all,

Can we come up with some type of response for those who request to participate who were not invited? We may need to handle this issue on a case by case basis, however, even so, I worry about us reaching capacity with too many additions before we have heard from our targeted invitees. In my response, I also do not want to run afoul of any policy regarding events being open to the public vs. closed meeting. Your suggestions would be appreciated!

Here are the additional folks who have emailed with a request to be added:

- Shirley Birt – received a forward from someone, don't know who she is
- Christina Theodorou – Program Manager at the UNC American Indian Center
- Jennifer Jackson – ED at Stone Circles, John Parker used to be on their board and passed invite on....
