Additional comments

The government should not be in the role of picking winners or losers in business. We should stay out of private enterprise actions except for general safeguards for the population overall (for example, a business should not be making fireworks next door to an apartment complex).

As far as legal union, I realize there are those who need to share benefits and this should be allowed to prevent some from being a burden on the State. For example, what if two elderly sisters lived together. One had benefits and wanted to include the other as her 'partner'. Also, I don't want our government to tell people what they can and cannot do inside their homes. I respect that there are others with different notions of what marriage should be. Marriage should be the traditional marriage. But, if others want 'some other arrangement', I would not want to take from them that opportunity. I just don't want the government to be liable for paying for it.

As far as the death penalty, I think that the 'beyond a reasonable doubt' measure should be reconsidered with something more along the lines of 'without any possible doubt' - i.e. more than 3 eyewitnesses, DNA and some other strongly corroborating pieces. Further, we should have a look at abortion if we eliminate the death penalty. It's not right for the government to allow the murder of children while forbidding the other. We need to carefully consider the options before rashly imposing changes. However, Changes are needed.
